JEREMY SPARAGON

*as long as you know
how hot your laundry
is when you want to be alone*

*as long as you know
who moved
and how far*

*as long as you know
whether or not
it's still early autumn*

do you feel like you have too many choices or too few?

what was the last song that was stuck in your head?

One Thing is Needful.

To “give style” to one’s character that is a grand and a rare art! He who surveys all that his nature presents in its strength and in its weakness, and then fashions it into an ingenious plan, until everything appears artistic and rational, and even the weaknesses enchant the eye exercises that admirable art...Here the ugly, which does not permit of being taken away, has been concealed, there it has been re -interpreted into the sublime. Much of the vague, which refuses to take form, has been reserved and utilised for the perspectives: it is meant to give a hint of the remote and immeasurable.

WIN- DOW PANES

I don't think I have anything profound to say about windows, or about seeing the reflection of what's behind you,

while also looking in to somewhere more still,

or out of one.

I just like the images they make— kind of fuzzy, and complex.
